U. S. Steel Denies Wage Cut

Annuonces Price Reductions of Almost 25 Million For Its Products

PITTSBURGH, April 22—(AP)—The U. S. Steel Corp., today denied a wage increase demanded by the CIO United Steelworkers and announced price cuts totalling almost $25,000,000 for its products.

The price cuts are effective May 1.

Philip Murray, president of the CIO and the Steelworker's union, asserted the corporation had denied "a just and much needed wage increase." His statement emphasized, however, that the union would continue to live up to a no-strike pledge in a two-year contract, reopened for wage discussion.

Benjamin F. Fairless, steel corporation president, declared the unspecified wage increase had been denied and the price cuts effected "in an effort to halt further advances in living costs."

Union Leader's Statement

The union leader declared in a statement: "We charge that the corporation has not negotiated in good faith on the wage issue. We contend that the corporation has not given adequate consideration to the immediate and pressing needs of its steel worker employes. We assert that it has not recognized the increase in the cost of living which has occurred.

The union and corporation have been negotiating since April 5 on unspecified wage increase demands. The negotiatione covered union workers in all major U. S. Steel producing subsidiaries, including Carnegie Illinois, National Tube, American Steel and Wire, Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad.

Renewed Pledge

Murray renewed a pledge that the union will "live up to the current two-year, no-strike contract. The pact does not expire until next spring but contains a clause which permits wage provisions to be reopened.

"We will live up to that contract," Murray declared. "We leave to the forum of public opinion whether corporation's professions are borne out by adamant and unjustified refusal to grant an equitable wage increase."

A CIO spokesman said the negotiations with U. S. Steel "on this point (wages)" could be considered as broken off.

Cost and Prices Too High

"We, in United States Steel, believe that costs and prices in general are too high today for the good of the nation. We are firmly of the conviction that American industry and labor should cooperatively do everything in their power to avoid further increases in costs, which, if permitted to occur, must result in higher prices for almost everything we buy."

Murray's contended that U. S. Steel "has been reaping" a "harvest of profit" while employes have suffered by rising living coses. He added that the corporation has failed to demonstrate any lack of ability to pay a wage increase.

The president of the Steelworkers and the CIO said U. S. Steel "belatedly proposed to decrease the prices of its products by an amount which it estimates at 25 million dollars annually."

Murray Added:

"This so called proce decrease does not even equal the $28,433,-197 increase in certain of its products which Mr. Ben Fairless (U. S. Steel Corp., president) testified would result from the increases made in February, 1948, alone."

Fairless' also said:

"So far as possible the price reductions will be made applicable to steel products which have a more or less direct bearing upon the cost of living."

Hot Denial of Charges by Communists

Victory in Italy Was Not Due to Corruption, Coercion

ROME, April 22—(AP)—Premier Alcide de Gasperi hotly denied today Communist charges that the anti-Communist victory in the Italian parliamentary elections was the product of corruption and coercion.

Addressing a new conference of nearly 300 foreign newspaper correspondents, De Gasperi called a statement made earlier by Communist leader Palmiro Togliatti "a very grave accusation."

As he spoke, a folded copy of this morning's edition of L'Unita, the Italian Communist organ carried Togliatti's charges, lay before him on the table.

ROME, April 22—(AP)—Pope Pius XII, in a formal statement to the American press, said today the Italian elections "Will be memorable in the annals of Italian history."

"An entire people," the Pope said, "has given proof of its grave sense of civic duty and the skies of Italy are brighter with hope x x x ."

De Gasperi, looking rested and relaxed, dealt first with Togliatti's assertion that the election results had been influenced by "foreign intervention" in the form of a threat to let Italy starve if the Communists won.

Asked for Wheat Weeks Ago

Actually, the premier said, the government asked the United States several weeks ago to send Italy 1,000,000 quintals of wheat by May to satisfy needs until the spring crop can be harvested. (A quintal is 220.46 pounds.)

"If the United States had acted as Togliatti alleges," he said, "it would have been a fine opportunity for the United States to say that it would give the wheat to one government but not to another."

Instead, De Gasperi said the United States agreed to respond.

"Consequently," he added, "there was no fear of starvation, since the wheat was promised even at the risk of its falling into

Town-Country Selects General Superintendent

C. W. Mathieson, vice president of Town and Country shoe company announced today the appointment of Alan Tawse to the newly created position of General Superintendent of this company's three factories located in Sedalia, Warrensburg and Odessa. He will be in complete charge of production and quality and personnel relations.

Mr. Tawse will make his home in Sedalia, where he will be in close contact with the main office of the company. He is moving his family from the east in the next several days. He brings to Town and Country a wealth of shoe making knowledge and experience. Originally from Brockton, Mass., which is dominantly a shoe manufacturing city, he first became connected with the nationally famous Walk-Over organization, where he remained for a period of eight years, finally becoming general superintendent. Following this Mr. Tawse spent four years with the Quartermaster division of the United States Army and was in charge of all Army shoe reclamation. After release from the Army he joined the Williams Manufacturing company. of Portsmouth, Ohio, makers of women's popular priced footwear. He headed up this plant, in which, under innovations of his own, average hourly earnings of employes were increased and production reached an average total of twenty thousand pairs a day, possibly the largest in one single unit in the country.

Factory Production

Town and Country is currently producing a total of 4,500 pairs of shoes each day. The factories work five days a week. Plans are to increase production to

Broker's Inventions Displayed At Hobby Show in Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, April 22—(AP)—What an air conditioned straw hat equipped with an electric fan?

Or a mouse trap that doesn't kill but flips its victim out of the house?

The inventor is J. W. Haynes, 60-year-old grain broker, and he's perfected a lot more similar gadgets. His inventions were on display today at a Hobby Club show—and they attracted the most spectators.

Here are some of the others:

A soup bowl that tilts automatically as the contents begin to lower, making it easier, Haynes says, to get the last few spoonful.

A fishing rod that recoils and raps the holder's knuckles to awaken him when he gets a bite.

A fork that has a windmill arrangement for winding up spaghetti.

The air-conditioned straw hat has vents that allow for removal of warm air and intake of cool air.

The mouse trap has a miniature catapult. when the trap grabs its victim the catapult is automatically released and the mouse goes flying out the window.

"What will prevent the mouse from coming back into the house?" Haynes was asked.

"Only his self respect," Haynes responded. "No self respecting mouse is going to keep on coming back into a house from which it has been pitched out three or four times.'

Names Delegates To Convention In Los Angeles

Arthur E. "Art" Brown, of Jefferson City, director of Industrial Development Service of the Missouri Division of Resources and Development, was the speaker today noon at the Kiwanis club at the Bothwell hotel.

The meeting was presided over by Ben P. Robinson, president, at which time two delegates to the national convention in Los Angeles, beginning June 6, were elected. They were T. H. Yount and A. H. Wilks, with Ben Robinson as alternate.

A. W. Klang introduced E. L. Rhodes, who gave a short talk on the Cancer Clinic in Pettis county.

Resolutions on the death of C. R. Kilbury, member of the club, were read.

A report was given by the president on the spring conference held Tuesday night in Jefferson City, which was attended by a delegation from Sedalia.

To Visit Other Clubs

T. H. Yount, Inter-club Relations chairman, announced that members of the Jefferson City club would bring the traveling gavel to the Sedalia club within the next two weeks and the Sedalia club members would take it on to Versailles, where the Versailles club would entertain with a fish fry.

L. J. Harned reported a member of the club, R. L. McKean, had a cataract removed from his eye at a Chicago clinic and was getting along satisfactorily.

J. L. Rosenthal, public relations chairman introduced John F. Zander, secretary-manager of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce, who introduced the guest speaker.

Pictures Shown

Mr. Brown showed two pictures "At the Spring in Missouri" and "Indian Summer."

In talking on the subject "Why We Are Advertising Spring and Fall" Mr. Brown said that they were trying to prolong the vacation time in Missouri from four months to six months. Advertise the spring and the fall and the summers will take care of themselves," he said.

The value of recreation in Missouri is estimated to mean $165,-000,000 a year to the state. Money which is left here by tourists is expended five to nine times," Mr. Brown said. In a recent survey of the result of the advertising campaign 57 per cent of those who had requested literature had actually vacationed in Missouri and were bringing with them two other persons, he reported, adding. A total of 42,625 persons wrote the office indicating an interest in taking advantage of the Missouri advertising.

Donations may be left with A. W. Klang, at his store or C. L. Carter, the last named at the Sedalia Bank and Trust Co.

Important Events In Last Minute News

WASHINGTON, April 22—(AP) — John L. Lewis today postponed a miners' welfare fund trustee meeting until Monday after his $100 monthly miners pension plan ran into a court challenge.

The mine leader had called the meeting for this afternoon, presumably to take steps toward starting payments of the pensions from the still-untapped $32,000,000 welfare fund.

Ezra Van Horn, trustee for coal mine owners who filed the court suit attacking the pension plan, said Lewis suddenly changed the time of the meeting from 4:30 p.m. (EST) today to the same hour Monday.

Van Horn told a reporter that Lewis, who is chairman of the trustee board, gave no reason for the action.

Katy to Use Radio System

ST. LOUIS, April 22—(AP)—The Katy Railroad tomorrow will begin using a radio communication system from engine to caboose on some of its freight trains.

Donald Fraser, president, said plans are to expand the system to include passenger trains.

A train with more than 100 cars will leave Sedalia tomorrow for a run to the railroad's Baden yards here.

Chief purpose in instolling radio equipment was the safety factor in permitting constant communication between the front and rear ends of the train, Fraser said.

Radio equipped trains within 25 miles of each other also can communicate.

Fraser said experiments with the new communications system over the past several months have been successful.

Hot Tip Today In Detroit's Great Manhunt

$117,900 Reward Offered; Officers Question Dozens

DETROIT, April 22.—(AP)—Police said they are working on a "hot tip" today in Detroit's great manhunt for the gunman who shot the CIO's Walter P. Reuther.

Chief of Detectives Jack Harvill said three union members would be brought in for questioning at once. He did not identify them further.

"We have a hot tip," Harvill told newsmen. "It looks good. That's all I can say."

His officers, meanwhile, checked an empty shell that may have come from the shotgun in the hands of Reuther's assailant.

William Muntford, a 16-year-old neighbor, found the empty 16-gauge shell near the curb on a street not far from Reuther's home. Witnesses told police the getaway car—a red sedan—traveled at high speed down the same street.

This indicated, police theorized, that more than one man took part in the attempt on the life of the 40-year-old CIO United Auto Workers president by firing a shotgun blast through a kitchen window.

Patient Doing Fine

Reuther, on a fruit juice diet in a hospital, was said by his physician to be "doing fine." His right arm was shattered by the shot.

Detectives—there are 40 of them assigned to the widespread search for the would-be killers—said the shell apparently was thrown from the right window of a car. If it came from the red sedan, they added, it might mean that another man besides the gun handler was at the wheel.

Sifting through the police of possibilities, officers questioned dozens of the frends and enemies the fiery union leader had made on his climb to the presidency of the CIO United Auto Workers.

But despite the offer of rewards totalling $117,900—perhaps the largest in the nation's history—real clues to the Tuesday night shooting remained rare.

Reuther himself, lying in New Grace hospital with his shattered right arm suspended in a traction cast, could offer few ideas.

No Clue Whatsoever

He told Prosecutor James V. McNally that "I haven't the slightest idea" when asked who might have shot him.

It might have been, said the labor leader, management, Communists or a screwball."

Reuther's associates in the UAW pledged their all-out aid to police.

Michigan state police also assigned crack detectives to aid Detroit authorities in their search, while the FBI offered its complete laboratory facilities.

Reward offers flooded in. The UAW itself pledged $100,000 to the person or persons who could give information leading to the would-be assassins. The city of Detroit offered $10,000. From the AFL International Brotherhood of Teamsters came $5,000, while $1,000 each was offered by the West Side Amalgamated Local and the Michigan CIO Council.

Communists Offer Reward

The Communist party, which Reuther had bitterly fought, offered $500 along with a statement denouncing the attack as "the most desperate of a number of Fascist assaults against the security and civil liberties of the American people."

Other sums came from small UAW locals.

Want Wedding Present From Government

TOKYO, April 22—(AP)—Five thousand municipal workers jammed the city hall courtyard today and demanded 10,000 yen ($200) as a present when they get married.

The municipal government lends its workers 3,000 yen ($60) when they marry. That, the demonstrators growled, is not enough.

Besides, they said, they do not like to pay it back.

The colonel feels so deeply about the matter he has personally posted a $25 reward for his tormenter.

Expect Texans To go Along With Truman

GOP Presidential Candidates Campaign in Ohio

By the Associated Press

Texas Democrats took a crack at President Truman's civil rights program, but indicated today the party organization will back him if he wins the Presidential nomination.

Alabama's Senator Sparkman, meanwhile, fanned the Dixie anti-Truman fires by renewing the boom for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

On the Republican side, Senator Robert A. Taft and Harold E. Stassen pressed their talking tours of Ohio in quest of further support in the May 4 primary. And Gov. Thomas E. Dewey picked up seven more New York state delegates to run his national total to 122.

The Texas Democratic executive committee voted 35 to 14 last night to recommend an uninstructed delegation to the Philadelphia convention in July.

But the group promised to "accord full support to every nominee of the party."

Will Not Join Revolt

Political observers there took this to mean the state organization would refuse to join any Dixie revolt that may flare after the convention.

As for the civil rights roposals which raised the rebellion threat, the committee said they would destroy home rule and civil liberties in the south.

Sparkman, who recently broke with Mr. Truman over civil rights, told a reporter he believes Eisenhower will be available for the Democratic nomination despite the General's statement that he "could not accept nomination to high political office."

Sparkman said he based his prediction on reports from "people who have talked directly with Eisenhower." He added that Alabama, as the first state to be heard from, might start a "We-Want-Eisenhower" boom at the convention."

Protest Attorney Fees Are Excessive

TOPEKA, Kas., April 22.—(AP)—The Kansas corporation commission has taken under advisement a protest against attorneys fees it charged to Southwestern Bell Telephone Company thus far in telephone rate litigation.

The telephone company had protested that the $13,750 fee allowed Louis R. Gates, Kansas City, Kas., and the $12,500 allowed Howard T. Fleeson, Wichita, are "excessive and illegal."

DAR Renews Opposition to 'Superstate of World Gov't

WASHINGTON, April 22—(AP)—The Daughters of the American Revolution today renewed opposition to any "superstate or world government."

At the same time, however, the DAR congress gave its support to the idea of a world organization such as the United Nations.

"It has become increasingly clear that there can be no lasting world peace until there is international cooperation among the peoples of the world," a resolution said.

The delegates adopted the resolution after hearing Mrs. G. L. H. Brosseau of Greenwich, Conn., honorary president general, describe the idea of a world government as "deadly, dangerous."

She said many women are joining the movement in an erroneous belief that it means peace.

In other resolutions: The DAR

1. Decided to ask congress to put up money to repair the Statue of Liberty and to develop a park around it.

2. Declared itself "heartily in accord" with the "much needed" Booker T. Washington memorial at the Franklin county, Virginia, birthplace of the Negro educator. The memorial includes an industrial training school and an interfaith chapel.

3. Urged congress to provide adequate schools, additional hospitals and land reclamation projects for the Navajo Indians.

Cabinet Post To Sawyer

Former Ambassador To Belgium is Nominated Today By the President

WASHINGTON, April 22 — (AP) — President Truman today nominated former ambassador Charles Sawyer of Ohio to be secretary of commerce.

Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross said Sawyer's nomination probably will go to the Senate today, along with that of W. Averell Harriman to be "roving ambassador" under the European recovery program.

Mr. Truman offered the commerce post to Sawyer by long distance telephone last night after Harriman agreed to give up that position to take over the ERP job.

Ross said Sawyer telephoned Mr. Truman today from his home at Cincinnati to accept the appointment.

The 61-year-old Cincinnati lawyer has been a frequent White House caller.

Another Decision Soon

The same administration authorities said Mr. Truman also hopes to decide on a new secretary of agriculture before Clinton P. Anderson steps out next month to run for the Democratic Senatorial nomination in New Mexico.

They said the President has given no indication whom he has in mind for that cabinet job.

A member of the Cincinnati city council from 1911 to 1915, Sawyer served as Lieutenant Governor in 1938 and as Democratic national committeeman from 1936 to 1944.

He was ambassador to Belgium in 1944 and 1945. In that capacity, he met Mr. Truman at Antwerp in 1945 when the Chief Executive arrived there en route to the Potsdam "Big Three" conference.

In First World War

Sawyer enlisted in the first World War and was discharged with the rank of Major after service with the AEF.

Some observers saw in the selection of Sawyer an effort on the part of the President to strengthen the cabinet politically in advance of the 1948 campaign.

There is word, too, that Samuel I. Rosenman, former special counsel to President Franklin D. Roosevelt, and later to Mr. Truman, will be enlisted to help with White House speech writing.

In what capacity Rosenman might play his part apparently has not been decided. In view of his New York law practice, there is no indication that he will take an official post.

Clark M. Clifford is due to continue as special counsel to the President, barring any sudden change in plans, officials said.

Saves Boy From Possible Injury

Darrell Ball, 1002 East Tenth street, employed in the pressroom of the Democrat-Capital, who was delivering papers for a carrier boy who is ill, came along at an opportune moment while making his delivery route and probably saved a little four-year old boy from sudden calamity which could have resulted in injury to the lad Wednesday afternoon at about 4:30 o'clock.

Ronnie Russell, 4 year old son of Mrs. Sadie Russell, 1620 South Vermont avenue was frolicking around with other little playmates from the neighborhood when evidently he decided to climb an elm tree to show his little friends a stunt or two.

Bail recognized the boy dangling from the limb of a tree when about fifteen or twenty feet from it. The boy was screaming for help, and wanting his little mates to get a rope or something, but instead, they just stood gazing up in bewilderment.

Bail realized the dangerous predicament the small boy was in, and scrambled up the tree to give aid and brought the lad from the shaky limb to the safety of the ground.

He was complimented on his heroic act by a grateful mother.

Circus Will Not be Here as Scheduled

The Cole Bros. Circus, which it had been announced would show in Sedalia on April 25, has had to make some changes in its routing, according to a letter to Mayor Julian H. Bagby, from Ed Hiler, contracting agent for the show, and will not be here on that date.

Hiler writes he regrets the changes were necessary, but hopes to have Sedalia on the schedule at a later date.

The Atom and You: 4

Can Atomic Fission Work for Man's Good?

Science is Hopeful, But It's Much Too Early to be Over-Optimistic

Radioactive iodine is one atomic by-product medical scientists using in their efforts to make the atom work for man's good. The radioactive iodine is drawn from a lead container into a glass of milk (below) which the patient drinks. Then the path of the iodine, used to treat certain types of thyroid cancer, is traced with a Geiger counetr (above).

How does the atom bomb kill? What strange effect does it have on the human body? Can an enemy without a bomb kill with deadly atomic warfare? Can atomic fission be made to work for man's benefit? Ever since Nagasaki and Hiroshima, man has been asking those questions. Little by little, doctors and physicists have been learning the answers, sifting them through the screen of "security." Now S. Burton Heath, NEA's reporter-at-large, who saw the atom at work in the Bikini tests, tells today's story of "The Atom and You." In simplest man-of-the-street language, he has put together the answer to man's questions from scientific reports and from the scientists who have written them.

WASHINGTON — (NEA)—To borrow a very old joke and give it a really sad setting: The treatment was wholly successful. An extremely bad cancer was completely cured. But the patient died.

A malignant cancer had spread all over the body of a 47-year-old man before it was discovered. He was given radio-active phosphorus. In two weeks he was back at work. In five weeks the cancer appeared to be gone.

Two months after treatment the cancer came back, growing faster than ever. With any standard treatment he was certain to die. Radiologists gambled, in hope hope of saving him. They gave him the most radiation he might survive. Again he recovered and seemed perfectly well.

Eighteen days after this second treatment he began to bleed in the gums and under the skin. Penicillin and transfusions kept him alive two weeks. Then he died. Autopsy showed that the cancer was gone—so completely gone that the doctor's couldn't find where it started. Every tumor cell had been killed by the radioactivity in the phosphorus. But so had he patient.

The episode is told by Dr. Edward Chamberlain, professor of Radiology at Temple University, in The Future of Atomic Energy, which is Volume I of the Westinghouse Educational Foundation's Science and Life in the World, published by Whittlesey House, the McGraw Hill Book Company.

The story is important because it shows why scientists do not want sensational stories about the medical wonders that atomic fission is going to produce.

Medical men, agricultural scientists and industrial experimenters all believe that radioactive isotopes, which are a by-product of the atomic pile, will do many good things in their fields. Experiments are progressing in stores of lines, and some are hopeful.

But it is much too early to get over-optimistic about particular uses of isotopes to cure diseases.

There is no question that radioactivity can be used to kill cancer. It has been used that way for years, from radium and x-rays. Atomic fission opens up new possibilities, though the rays are identical. But the case described by Dr. Chamberlain proves that enough radiation to kill the cancer cells may be enough radiation to kill the patient. Science has to try to learn how to make radiation kill only bad cells, and leave good ones alone. This may take years.

The bones like calcium and take much of what enters the body. So there was hope that radioactive calcium and strontium, introduced into the body, would go to the bones and kill bone tumors. Unfortunately, too much went where it shouldn't and the treatment proved dangerous.

Radiologists had another idea. It is to put boron into an organ that is cancerous. Then bombard this boron with a narrow beam of high speed neutrons, which are the most penetrating of all nuclear rays. This makes boron itself become radioactive. It gives off intense rays, but they do not travel far. It is hoped that their intensity would kill the cancer cells, but that they would not go far enough to scatter those cells or to reach nearby healthy tissues.

Much of the work being done with isotopes depends on the fact that each part of the human body attracts particular elements. These elements can be radioactivated by putting them into an atomic pile and letting the neutrons upset their atomic structures.

Iodine tends to go to the thyroid, so radioactive iodine can be used both to study the thyroid's working and to fight over-activity. Isotopes of iron, sodium and hydrogen can be used to study how various substances — into which those isotopes have gone—pass through the placental barrier from mother to fetus and support the new life in the womb.

Radioactive iron is used to trace the red blood cells, radioactive sodium to follow the blood's circulation from heart back to heart, radioactive potassium and sodium to study the pituitary and adrenal glands.

These things are possible because even the relatively weak radiations from such isotopes can be measured with Geiger counters. The counters, placed outside the body, follow the isotopes' movements inside.

But these things are studies. They help to show how the body works, which is important. They may help to locate and identify diseases, and suggest how to cure them. They aren't cures.

Only one new curative method may have been found yet. Radioactive isotopes of sodium and phosphorus have been used to treat lukemia. That is a disease in which the bone marrow, the spleen and the lymph make too many white corpuscles. These are not strong, to fight infection, and they crowd out red corpuscles so that the body does not get enough oxygen and anemia results.

The radioactive elements slow down white cell production by injuring the red bone marrow and the tissues of the lymph and the spleen. They also kill off existing white cells. Obviously such treatment must be used very carefully, because when it injures the red marrow it also slows down production of red cells, which already were too few. And it is important not to kill off too many white cells.

The Atomic Energy Commission is financing a study to see what radioactivity does to help the soil grow plants; and also, by using isotopes as tracers, to learn how much of their phosphorus various plants get from fertilizer and how much from other sources.

Industry is using isotopes in many ways: to locate new sources of oil—to check leaks in high-pressure pipes carrying dangerous gases—to detect flaws in heavy castings—for chemical analysis.

Interesting And Varied Program

Given as the S-C Students Entertain Senior Assembly

Wednesday morning, at the regular senior assembly at Smith-Cotton high school, special talents of the school's departments were presented to the students.

Barbara Todd was the mistress of ceremonies.

To open the program, a display of posters was shown to the group.

Mary Frances McCurdy sang and whistled "By the Waters of Minnesonka," by Lieurance, and as an encore, sang her own version of "Now Is the Hour," dedicating it to members of the senior class. It was as follows:

"Now is the Hour
When we must say goodby.
Soon we'll be leaving,
Dear Smith-Cotton high.
When we're away,
Then we'll remember her.
If we return,
We'll find her waiting there."

Talk on Posters

Bob Gardner, representative of the arts department, explained the difference between educational and informative posters. He stated a good poster should have legible lettering, simple coloring and be so composed that "he who runs may read."

Bill Monsees, representing the English department, read a short story, "Dear Pop," written by Cecil Monsees. The plot had Bill, a 17-year-old lad, inveigling his father into assisting him in the preparaton of a farewell speech to the football team. The speech commences with "Friends, Romans and football men, I have come to bury the pigskin, not praise it." The address continues in that vein and in the end, he thanks them for their friendliness while he served them as a water boy for four years.

Speaking for the speech department, Milton Chamberlain gave a humorous declaration, "Arsenic and Old Lace," taken from the story that was produced as a successful Broadway play and a motion picture. It concerned a young man, who was greatly upset by his two elderly aunts, who had an odd practice of putting poor, distressed old men "out of their misery" by giving them elderberry wine, tainted with arsenic.

The poem, "The Arrow and the Song," was recited in English and French by Jean Cercelius.

Comical Pantomime

A comical pantomime was given by the Latin department. Shirley Kanter narrated the story of why mulberrys are red.

Charles Edwards, Bob Gardner and Jim Atkinson gave illustrations of advanced mathematics. They solved difficult problems and explained them through the medium of diagrams on a blackboard.

Leo Eickhoff spoke for a few minutes about the "Freedom Train," which will be in Sedalia Saturday, May 29.

Representing the instrumental department, Bill Schwenk played "The Director's March" and "I'm Looking Over a Four-leaf Clover," on the accordion.

In conclusion, Miss Todd expressed her thanks for the cooperation from students and faculty.

In the display case in the main hall of the school there were model meals, prepared by the home economics department. At the end of the east wing, on the first floor, the manual arts department had a display of various articles they have made during the year.

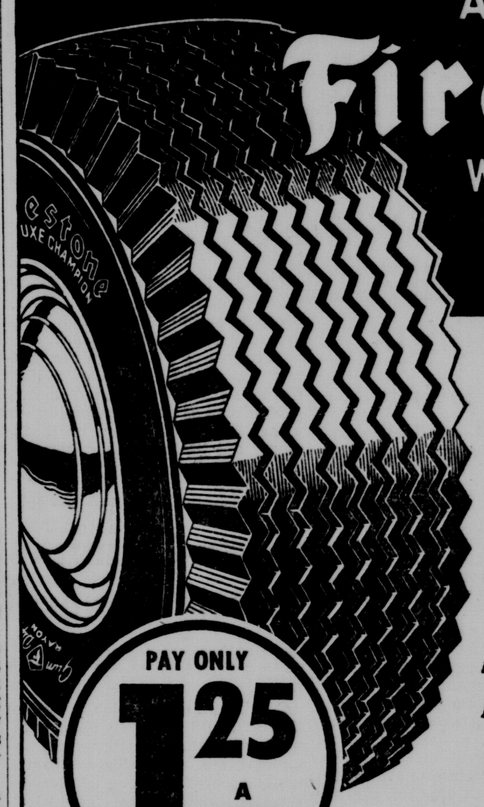

Oriental Vegetables Los Ground

HONOLULU—(AP)—The market for such Oriental vegetables as daikon, burdock, dasheens and lotus root is disappearing. "Apparently this is partly the result of a natural growing-up process of the Oriental population," says Shiro Takei, of the economics division of the University of Hawaii Agricultural Extension Service.

Takei says the cooking and eating habits of the average Oriental family have made an about-face since the days when Mama-san held the reins in the kitchen. Now that second and third generation housewives have the say-so as to what goes onto their tables, cooking has gone Caucasian style. "Many of the younger group don't know how to cook the traditional Japanese dishes," he says.

New Class to Start July 1

Another class of Aviation Cadets in the reactivted Aviation Cadet program which is open to veterans will start July 1, according to Captain Kenneth E. Wehrman, commanding the USA and AF Recruiting Station, Post Office, Sedalia, Mo.

Qualified veterans from any branch of the armed services who can meet the United States Air Force's high requirements can apply now for Aviation Cadet training, Captain Wehrman said.

The applicant must be 20 to 26½ years of age and unmarried, with two or more years of college, or be able to pass an equivalent education examination. Candidates also must have sound physiques and excellent health.

Aviation Cadet training takes 12 months and upon its completion graduates are commissioned as 2nd lieutenants in the Air Force Reserve and placed on active duty with the United States Air Force. They may, if they wish to make the Air Force a career, apply for a Regular Air Force commission.

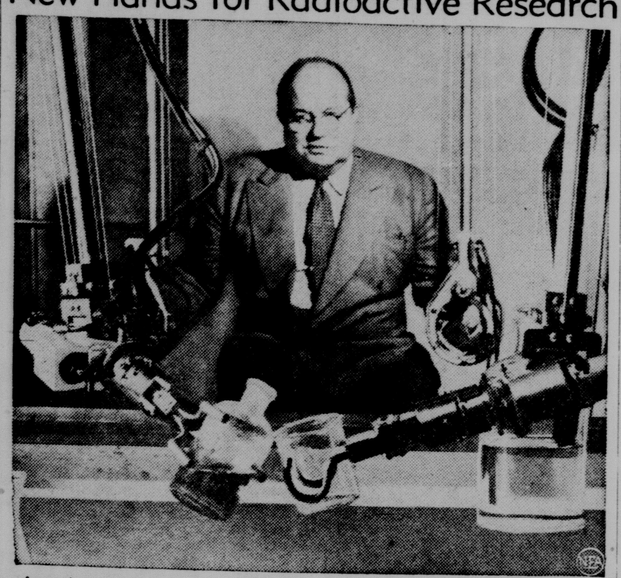

An Aviation Cadet is paid $75 a month, plus food, clothing, housing and medical and dental care. A $250 clothing allowance is given upon graduation. As a second lieutenant on flying pay, he receives $336 a month as a single officer and $372 a month if married.

Men who did not complete high school are eligible for this career plan, Captain Wehrman said, if they can document the equivalent education. Some 40 technical and specialist courses are open to veterants under this plan.

Basket Dinner at Houstonia

There will be a home coming and basket dinner at the Houstonia Methodist church Sunday, April 25, services both morning and afternoon.

New Hands for Radioactive Research

American scientists have developed another pair of hands to aid them in dangerous radioactive research. These mechanical hands can work on radioactive elements and chemicals which might injure human hands. Perfected by scientists of the General Electric Corporation, they are demonstrated at the 18th annual Safety Convention Exposition in New York.

Developed for work in radioactive research, these mechanical hands show their deftness by slicing an orange. The hands will be used on research involving elements and chemicals which might injure human hands. They can perform delicate experiments in radioactive areas.

These hands, that are accurately pouring a glass of milk, will soon be accurately pouring dangerous chemicals. The General Electric Research Laboratory and the Atomic Energy Commission demonstrated these mechanical hands at the 18th annual Safety Convention Exposition in New York. They were developed for research with radioactive elements, which might injure human hands.

Admitted to Hospital

Mrs. L. E. Whiteman, 1515 South Stewart avenue, left Monday morning for St. Louis, and was admitted to the Missouri Pacific Hospital in St. Louis for medical treatment.

She was accompanied there by her husband and son, Bobby.

Ha! Boyle's Column

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, April 21—(AP)—King Ibn Saud of Arabia has become an American watermelon fan.

"He really goes for them," said Texas-born Kenneth J. Edwards, director of the Saudi Arabian agricultural program.

"All he ever had before were native watermelons, which look more like gourds than watermelons.

"Now he's anxious to get some big American chickens and big eggs, too."

Chances are he'll get them soon. Edwards has just recruited 22 Texas farm experts to organize a long term program to develop Arabia's agricultural resources.

The program, financed by royalties from the Arabian American oil company, was decided upon by the king after Edwards and five other Texas farm men successfully developed a 3,000-acre project at Al Kharj, where Ibn Saud has a summer palace.

New to Them

"We introduced American varieties of watermelon, tomatoes, eggplant, carrots, onions, pumpkins and squash," Edward said. "They'd never seen anything like them over there.

"The produce was divided by the king and Amir Saud, the crown prince."

The king got two-thirds — but he feeds a lot of people. He has a court retinue of more than 2,000, including a lot of hungry relatives and desert ward heelers.

Edwards hopes that eventually Arabia, which now has to import 75 percent of its food, will become almost entirely self sustaining.

"It's a big country—four times bigger than Texas itself," he said with a note of awe that anything could be that large. "But only about five percent of its 1,200,000 square miles is tillable.

Teaching Better Methods

"By using better seed, some insecticides, fertilizers, fungicides, a small amount of machinery and only a little more water, we believe we can increase production 50 to 100 percent.

"But we can't do it all for them. Our program is to teach them better methods for using the land — to help them to help themselves."

The next step will be to develop four more large model farms throughout Arabia similar to the Al Kharj project. Committees of Arab farmers helped pick the sites. At first they asked Edwards suspiciously:

"Is this just for a few pets of the government, or is it for all?"

He said that now, convinced American farming methods will help make the desert bloom, the old farmers are asking:

"Why didn't the king set up this program before?"

Contest to Even Exist

One reason was that before Ibn Saud peddled his oil concessions the country's income depended chiefly on fees collected from religious pilgrims from other Arab lands.

"These people have had a long contest with nature even to exist," said Edwards. "That explains some of their characteristics.

"It's like Biblical times. Why it makes your hair stand on end to see the opportunities there are there to help people. And those old Arab farmers are really grateful."

Edwards believes the "good will approach through agriculture" will make more friends for America in the Middle East than "silk hat functions."

Must Help Them

"You got to really help them rather than just give them talk," he said.

The 68-year-old king, sold on American watermelons and looking forward to Texas-size chickens, told him:

"My people take to modern ways. Five years ago they would not ride on anything but a camel. Now they all want to ride airplanes."

Even more — they want some of those king-size watermelons.

The Innocent Impostor

THE six-thirty from Liverpool Street was always crowded. Business girls dashed along at the last moment and threw themselves into it just as it was starting. Men from the city sat in the first-class carriages reading their evening papers, glad that their day was over. Women, up in town for a round of the shops, stowed their parcels away on the racks and were happily contented to be returning to the country.

Patience Mond caught it on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. She went up in the morning on the nine o'clock, scurried into the tube to Oxford Circus, and emerged to cross the street and take the third turning on the left, then to disappear into the first house on the right, where the lift took her to the top floor.

Here she entered the Stanton Academy of Dressmaking where, with several other girls of varying ages she stitched and learned and duly digested all that Madame Girard, and the teachers under her, had to teach her regarding the intricate business of dressmaking.

Patience was never quite sure whether she really wanted to become a dressmaker. It didn't strike her as a very thrilling profession. But her Aunt Helen and her Aunt Alice, after much discussion, and a visit to London to inspect the academy, had chosen it for her.

And Patience, amazed to find them agreeing that she should embark on any career at all, other than that of a nursery-governess, had jumped gratefully at their suggestion that she should join the Academy and go three days a week to London.

She leaned back now in her corner and opened the magazine she'd bought at the book-stall. It was her favorite weekly and she was looking forward to going on with the serial. As the train pulled out of the station she settled down to enjoy herself. And then found that she couldn't. The printed words conveyed nothing to her.

She knew the reason. She wasn't giving them her undivided attention. She was reading them with her eyes, but her mind was telling her he was there again sitting opposite her, his eyes upon her. She'd only to look up and he'd smile and say: "Good evening."

She looked up.

"Hello," he said.

"Hello," she said.

HITHERTO, though, it had been good evening. Once she'd dropped her magazine and he'd picked it up and handed it to her. He'd tried then to draw her into conversation. But she'd not encouraged him. True, she wanted to. He had such a charming way with him. But no nice girl allowed herself to be picked up by a young man in a train. Or anywhere else for that matter. On this point her aunts were always most insistent.

"Enjoying your magazine?"

Her head disappeared behind it.

Paul Taylor sighed. He wondered why he bothered with her. For the last month he'd been travelling in her carriage. And it took a bit of doing. The darned train was always so crowded. It meant getting to the station on time and watching for her to come along. He looked at her bent head in the funny old-fashioned round felt hat that was just like a schoolgirl's. What was there about her that so intrigued him? The very fact that she was so different from other girls, he supposed. Not a spot of make-up. Just a dusting of powder on her small upturned nose. Hair devoid of a perm though it curled nicely on its own, as he saw when occasionally she took her hat off. But nothing smart about it. No upward sweep or clustering curls.

Patience turned a page. No, she wasn't going to look up at him again. Yes, she knew he was staring at her. Funny how she could feel his eyes upon her when her head was bent over her reading. She hoped the hot tell-tale color wasn't creeping up her cheeks. It was such a ridiculous habit she'd got of blushing. How the girls at the academy laughed at her! And some of them congratulated her. "You don't see many girls blushing these days. Listen, Patience, what sort of a home do you come from that you don't seem to know any of the answers?"

"Come on. You'll be home in no time," Paul promised encouragingly as he held out his arms to her. "One, two, three— Be a brave little girl. The big bad wolf won't eat you!"

She came from a very nice home, although a very strict one. She'd a shrewd suspicion it was almost unique. She wondered sometimes if there could be anywhere in the whole of England two women quite so old-fashioned as the two maiden aunts to whom she was devoted and who'd brought her up since childhood. Not that she minded. She'd an idea she was possibly a little old-fashioned herself. She supposed it must be a matter of upbringing. She wondered if a day would come when she'd ever change. When she'd be more like the other girls she met at the dressmaking classes. Learn to use make-up. To wear smart clothes. To go out with boy-friends. She sighed involuntarily. It seemed so unlikely. Her aunts disapproved of make-up. They liked her to be nicely and quietly dressed, they always told her. And as for boy-friends. . . . Plenty of time for them a little later on. One day someone would come along to whom she'd be properly introduced. After all, she was still very young. Twenty? What was that? Why, to them still she was very much of a baby!

AT Broxbourne four people got out. Patience shifted in her seat. There was more room now. She laid aside her magazine.

"That's better," said Paul. "It's not much fun, is it, when it's quite so crowded?"

"No," said Patience.

Paul wished the carriage would empty altogether. Then, hang it all, he'd insist on her talking to him. But there was a parson in the opposite corner and a fussy old lady along the seat from him. He'd no wish to get the snub direct in public. Burnt Mill came next.

"Comic name for a place, isn't it?" he said as the train started again.

"Yes," said Patience.

Paul sighed. Dumb, he thought sadly, and not even beautiful. He'd give it up. It was altogether too much like hard work. There was a snappy little blonde that caught this train every night. Far better look to her to help him while away the time on the journey.

The train amblod on. She'd be getting out at the next station. He'd still got three more to go. So had the snappy blonde for that matter. In fact she, it seemed, lived further down the line than he did. And then there was a jerk. The train moved forward slowly. Jerked again and then stopped. The old lady sat forward and peered out of the window.

"Are we in a station?"

"I don't think so," said Paul.

The parson looked at his watch and said he hoped the delay wouldn't be a long one.

"I expect we'll be off again in a minute," said Paul cheerfully.

BUT a quarter-of-an-hour later the train was still stationary. And now heads were peering out of carriages. People were talking amongst themselves. Something had gone wrong. The hold-up might prove a long one. The guard came down the train. There'd been an accident, he was telling the passengers, at a level crossing a short distance further along the line. No, he couldn't tell how long it would be before they'd be able to go on again.

"How far to Oakley?" called Paul, knowing it was her station.

"Barely a mile."

Carriage doors opened here and there. The passengers for Oakley were clearly deciding that they might as well walk on rather than wait in the train indefinitely. It was a clear moonlit night. Patience wondered what to do about it. If the delay were really a long one, Aunt Helen and Aunt Alice would begin to worry as to what had happened to her. They were always in a little bit of a state until she got safely in, still—quite absurdly, of course — wondering whether it had been really wise to allow her to go off by herself three days a week to London.

"I'll walk along with you," said Paul.

Patience looked at him.

"But you don't get out at Oakley."

"That's all right. I'll hang on there and pick this train up when it comes along eventually. Or I might hitch-hike home."

Paul opened the carriage door. He'd an idea it was now or never. He got out, jumping down onto the line.

"Come on. You'll be home in no time." He held out his arms to her. "One, two, three— Be a brave little girl. The big bad wolf won't eat you."

The Daily Washington Merry-go-Round

by Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON, April 22 — Ohio's usually solemn senator Robert A. Taft and his wife, Martha, were listening to a radio program, "CBS Was There," dramatizing ancient times in modern language. This particular program was based on the fall of ancient Pompeii and the dramatization was grim and gruesome.

The people of Pompeii starved as their city was torn to pieces. As the program closed, Senator Taft picked up the phone and called Columbia Broadcasting.

"You can tell the people of Pompeii," he said, "not to worry. The Truman administration will ask for a $42,000,000 relief program for them next week, I'm sure."

Merry-Go-Round

President Truman has been calling in Democratic leaders from all over the nation and giving them pep talks aimed at securing his own renomination. After they leave his office, the visitors are discreetly warned that a vote against Truman at the Philadelphia convention means no jobs for them in the future. . . . CIO President Phil Murray and Chicago political boss Jack Arvey met secretly in Pittsburgh the other day. Both are opposed to Truman's running again. . . . Chester Bowles, who is opposing President Truman's renomination, will make a nationwide tour stumping for a liberal Democratic nominee. . . . John L. Lewis' real strategy in prolonging the mine strike was to cut coal reserves. With stock piles low, Lewis is in a better bargainnig position to get wage increases when the operators have to sign a new contract in June.

No Change on Lewis

After G. O. P. Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire settled the coal strike, Attorney General Tom Clark personally wanted to pursue the government's case against John L. Lewis but decided to phone the White House for instructions.

"There's no reason to change our course in the slightest," was President Truman's immediate reply. "I know you intend to go right ahead with the court proceedings and I want you to."

When Clark inquired what Truman thought about the Martin-Bridges peace deal with Lewis, the president said: "I'm ignoring it."

He added that he was glad to see the miners starting back to work, but was losing no sleep over Republican attempts to embarrass the administration.

Under the Dome

Three years after Roosevelt's death members of the Roosevelt Memorial Foundation have finally condescended to invite Steve Early, one of FDR's closest friends to join the Roosevelt Foundation. . . . R. D. McCain, Dallas oilman, and his three flying sons, plan a round-the-world speed flight via Moscow — if the Russians will let them. . . . Congratulations to Congressman Lyndon Johnson of Texas for pushing President Truman into freezing surplus war plants. If it hadn't been for Johnson, a lot more plants would have been sold just as war production is needed again. . . . SEC commissioners, studying the record of the Henry Kaiser-Cyrus Eaton stock market fight, may recommend to congress a law penalizing any investment banker who walks out on a contract in the future.

Hawaiian Statehood

Senator Guy Cordon of Oregon is pressing for a vote on Hawaiian statehood inside the senate territories and insular affairs committee. The house has already voted to make Hawaii the 49th state, but the bill hasn't been able to get by Chairman Hugh Butler of the senate committee.

Butler has been insisting that the committee make a first hand inspection before it passes on statehood despite the fact that when Butler's committee was invited to Hawaii last summer Cordon was the only one who accepted.

Down Pennsylvania Ave.

GOP Congressman E. H. Hedrick of West Virginia has vigorously protested to the White House against the proposed sale of 225 government owned homes at South Charleston, W. Va. . . . "We are selling war plants for 10 cents on the dollar, but the appraisal value of these housing units has been jacked up so high by government housing officials that vets can't get loans from banks to buy homes," Hedrick told the president. "Men who fought for their country can't understand why we sell war plants cheap to industry and homes high to veterans." . . . When the president received a pair of gold-plated boots and a bootjack from the Ed Paso chamber of commerce he surprised the Texas presentation committee by putting the two-piece bootjack together in jig time. . . . "You do that like an old hand," exclaimed Representative Ken Regan, from the Texas cattle country. . . . Said California's representative Harry Sheppard to a group of congressmen in the house restaurant: "Unless we are completely stupid, we must assume that the German scientists Russia commandeered have given her the atomic bomb by this time and that she has planes as fast or, perhaps, faster than ours to carry the bomb. That means we will either have to start appeasing Russia or build an air force big enough to whip her. The quicker we build an air force like that, the quicker Stalin and his thugs will become good boys."

6,000 pairs within the next several months. All shoes carry the Town and Country trade mark, a silk label, sewed to the inside of each right foot shoe where it is easily seen. Shoes are sold only to America's largest retail and department stores located in cities primorily of 100,000 population and over. Shoes are sold on a quota basis, distributors receiving only so many pair each month. In the past year, and particularly in the past few weeks, most factories in St. Louis and Missouri area making women's shoes have been closed down because they did not have orders. Town and Country by comparison has had its wheels running without interruption at capacity.

A new line of samples for this coming fall season is now ready and will be shown to the company's customers at the National Shoe Retailers Convention to be held in Chicago this next week. Mr. Vergil Lipscomb, President of Town and Country, who is in charge of sales and advertising, has been working with several eastern accounts in the company's New York sample rooms this past week. It is predicted by the results seen so far that orders covering production for the next several months will be taken at the coming Chicago convention.

Asked why Town and Country has business when other factories are closed or working on part time, Mr. Mathieson replied, "Town and Country shoes are made of best materials, they are priced right and the consumer has confidence in the name which has been nationally advertised, but of most importance, I think, is the fact the shoes have quality workmanship throughout — good workmanship from the cutting board to the packing table, to which everyone in the Town and Country organization has contributed his share and his part."

the hands of the honorable Togliatti."

The premier disposed of Togliatti's assertion that Italy had been threatened with the atomic bomb in one word:

"Fantastic."

Then he took up the charges, made by Togliatti, that there had been improper intervention by the church in the election campaign.

The church's role in the political battle, he said, was in the moral and spiritual field, outside the province of the government.

"The conscience is free," he added, "and eight million persons (who supported the Popular Front) voted as they saw fit without suffering any moral limitation."

On the other hand, he said, there were 18,000,000 who voted against the Communist-dominated front and who, the premier said, presumably were considered by Togliatti persons "without judgment."

'The Only Way He Knew Out'

ATLANTA, April 22.—(AP)—An admitted Ku Klux Klansman accused of being a "black raider" flogger took "the only way I know out" last night, when Police Sgt. L. T. Bullard said, he fired a fatal shotgun blast into his left side.

Bullard said grey-haired, 58-year-old Sherman C. Keheley, under $5,000 bond on flogging charges, shot himself to death at his home.

His wife found the body, the officer reported, sprawled barefoot on the floor near a bed. Nearby was a .12 gauge shotgun and a scrawled note which a newsman read as saying:

"I have always tried to do the best I can by everybody. This is the only way I know out."

Keheley and four others were indicted for taking Joe Berry, a 23-year-old war veteran from his home a week ago and beating him. Found at the scene of the flogging were cards bearing the words "Black Raiders," together with a heavy leather strap on a wooden handle.

Third Arrest In Payroll Case

ST. LOUIS, April 22.—(AP)—A suspect in the $31,400 payroll holdup of the Bussman Manufacturing company on March 5 was arrested last night and Police Sgt. James Cox said he was identified positively by four firm employes as the third man in the robbery.

Cox identified the man as Eddie Hines, 51-year-old tavern owner. A week ago police arrested Lawrence (Mad Dog) McBride and Frank (Snake) Martin, both former convicts, after receiving a tip the pair was spending money lavishly.

Hines has no police record, Cox said, but was arrested several times during the prohibition era on bootlegging complaints. All three men have denied participation in the holdup.

Remembering Names---Faces A Gift Not Easy to Acquire

Remembering names and faces is a gift and if you don't have that gift it isn't easy to acquire. In fact some people give up and try to make the best of sometimes embarrassing situations.

One Sedalia woman recalls such a moment when she was quite young. The occasion was a meeting of a church society. She didn't understand the name when the new minister's wife was introduced. She hadn't seen her enough to recognize her and as far as she was concerned she was just another woman of the church she just didn't remember. But her lack of ability to recognize people didn't keep her from wanting to be friendly so she attempted to make conversation with this pleasant elderly woman near her.

"How do you like the new minister?" she said.

The elderly woman smiled sweetly and answered: "Well, sometimes I like him very much and then there are other times I just can't stand the sight of him," then she laughed and added, "You see, my dear, I am the new minister's wife."

Certain Set Rules

"They tell me," another woman said, "that there are rules and ways of remembering people, but I have tried them all and I still don't know people. One suggestion is to notice an unusual feature about the person and I have tried that, too, but the trouble there is I can't remember who the feature belongs to."

But there is still another woman who may have a little trouble now and then remembering other people, but she isn't going to let anybody forget who she is. "I just keep going up to the new people I meet and telling them who I am every time I meet them. she said. "The new ministers always remember me because I won't let them forget. One time there was a very nice man in a store, but he never could remember who I was. He was always so embarrassed so I told some of the others in the store I would make him remember my name. The next time I went in the store I had my name pinned on me, much to the amusement of the other employes. But he never forgot my name after that."

Maybe the lady has something there. It would certainly be a big help to newspaper reporters if people would wear their names pinned on them.

Baby Found in Garbage Can

MINNEAPOLIS, April 22—(AP)—A newborn baby boy, found among garbage parcels on a city truck, was alive and well at Minneapolis general (city) hospital today.

Walter Lindell said the attention of himself and another garbage handler was attracted to the newspaper wrapped package when it stirred after having been dumped into the truck from one of two refuse cans they were emptying late yesterday.

Investigating, Lindell said he found the child, barren of clothing, wrapped it in his coat and summoned an ambulance.

Police, arriving with the ambulance, found a crowd gathered around the garbage truck. They noticed a 19-year-old onlooker exhibiting more than ordinary interest. The girl became hysterical as questions were asked.

Between sobs she admitted she had given birth to the child an hour earlier in her nearby room. She was reunited with her baby at the hospital, where physicians said the boy was normal, healthy and in very good conditions. The mother was being queried further today.

Arabs Want Action

CAIRO, April 22.—(AP)—Six Arab governments have agreed to send troops into a three-pronged attack on Palestine unless the United Nations produces before May 16 a solution of the Holy Land problem acceptable to the Arab world, a reliable source said today.

Miners on Strike in France

LILLE, France, April 22.—(AP)—One hundred and thirty thousand miners were reported on strike today in France's northern coal fields.

Production is virtually at a standstill, the French news agency said.

New Ratings For Airmen

WASHINGTON, April 22.—(AP)—The air force has chosen titles for its "airmen" to distinguish them from army enlisted personnel.

The new ratings would be authorized under pending legislation.

For warrant officers there would be four grades—chief airman and senior airman, 1st, 2nd or 3rd class. A chief airman would receive pay equivalent to that of a major. It would range down to a 2nd lieutenant's pay for senior airman, 3rd class.

Here is how the air force proposes to re-name the grades for enlisted men: Master sergeant becomes senior air sergeant; technical sergeant, air sergeant, 1st class; staff sergeant, air sergeant; sergeant, airman 1st class; corporal, airman, 2nd class; private first class, airman 3rd class; private, airman 4th class.

Car-a-Day Thief Being Sought

NEVADA, Mo., April 22.—(AP)—State Highway Patrolmen today were looking for a thief with a car-a-day plan.

His scheme came near being wrecked last night as police chased him around town for about 15 minutes. He got away, however.

Sheriff Leslie K. Hunt and the Highway Patrol traced this trail of his operations.

Tuesday night he wrecked near Adrian, Mo., a 1948 Buick which had been stolen at North Platte, Neb.

In its place he took a 1941 Buick and drove to Kansas City. Here he left the Buick and took a 1947 Pontiac. He abandoned that car after the chase here last night and took in its place a 1937 Plymouth.

Police Chief B. E. Davis is checking the possibility the thief took time out last night to burglarize three business houses. The loot included a set of tools and $13.00.

'Give us Rain!'

While wheat on Kansas borders is doing fairly well, farmers in mid-state wheat land, such as Jay Fellers, above, of Ellis county, are asking, "Please, dear Lord, give us rain!" Conditions on Fellers' farm, near Hays, Kansas, are unfavorable to a good 1948 wheat crop because of dry topsoil, crusted fields, lack of crown root development and stooling. Most Kansas central and western wheat lands need cool weather and moisture immediately. (NEA TELEPHOTO)

Cabby's Savings go for Buttons ---Used to Fight Communism

Taxi Driver Max Vogel and his wife and two of their sons inspect the ammunition in their war against Reds—the allegiance buttons Max hands out to his passengers.

By NEA Service

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Max Vogel's wife saved $200 to buy furniture. It took her a long time, but she wanted the furniture very badly.

Today she's found something that both she and her husband want more, and the $200 has all been spent on buttons.

She and Max, a cab driver, are carrying on a one-family war against Communism. She provided the capital; he's spreading the word, and the buttons.

"I've been well off three times in my life," Max says. "We're down now, but we'll be up again.

"We're eating plenty and the children are fine. It's tough on my wife, but she's wonderful. She's the one that's behind all this button business."

The buttons carry a picture of Uncle Sam under a legend "I Pledge Allegiance to My Flag," and across the bottom is printed "Fight Communism."

Max hands the buttons and a selling talk on democracy to all his customers.

They planned their campaign one night after their children were in bed. They figured it would take a long time to raise enough money to start.

Then Mrs. Vogel said:

"We could use the $200 we put in the bank for furniture."

"Gosh!" Would you do that?" Max asked incredulously.

She did and the campaign was on.

"I give a button to every fare that rides in my cab," Max says.

"I've been doing this for a week and I get lots of encouragement. The other day a woman said it's high time a movement like this got going.

"One man offered me $100 for buttons but I couldn't take it. My wife and I are doing this one on our own. I guess we're doing it for our six boys."

Not all his customers agree

Vogel's weapon: Every fare gets one.

with Max, however. One middle-aged man picked a button from where it was pinned in the cab's upholstery and read the legend in what Max figured was a pretty sneering way.

"That guy had the gall to try and convert me to Communism. What he said sounded crazy, especially so soon after what happened in Czechoslovakia. I stood it as long as I could without saying a word.

"Then I stopped the car and opened the door. I told him I wasn't going to waste words on him and that my answer was on the button in his hand.

"'Get out!' I hollered. 'I don't want your money. I don't fatten on my country's enemies and I don't give them comfort, either. If you don't get out under your own power I'll drag you out and I won't handle you tenderly.'

"He got out, still clutching the button, but he didn't pin it on his lapel the way several hundred have done."

Vogel used to be an optician, but "that gave me claustrophobia with this boiling inside.

"In a taxi a guy like me can do something about Communism, talking to about 100 fares a day. They start the conversation about the buttons in my cab. Then I chime in."

Mrs. Vogel brought in a box of 2,000 buttons and Max filled his pockets and a bag. It was afternoon and he drives a night shift.

Hacking's fine today, Max figures. It's a living.

"But in no other country in the world could I look forward to better days as we're doing together."

Egg nog is easily made by beating an egg with a teaspoon or two of sugar and a few drops of vanilla. About 1 cup of milk and a few grains of salt should then be added and the whole mixture beaten again. The egg nog should be served cold.

Main Street's Traffic Problems go to College

Yale Students in Blimp Classrooms Make Guinea Pigs Out of Motorists

Classroom work in Yale's study of road congestion includes use of toy-sized cars, which students and faculty ponder above.

Night photograph, in which time exposure reveals traffic conflicts traced by headlights, is explained by Prof Theodore Matson, director of Yale's Bureau of Highway Traffic

One textbook for Yale's traffic Students is modern highway intersections like this, which they study fro Navy blimps.

By NEA Service

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—(NEA)—If you see a blimp hovering over your car on a highway someday, don't worry about an aerial traffic cop.

You are unknowingly being made a guinea pig in a traffic study that will certainly make your driving easier, and someday may even save your life.

In the blimp will be students from Yale—the only college in the country now offering a full graduate course in traffic engineering. Photographing and observing traffic flows from the air are only part of their course.

To begin with, all students at the Yale Bureau of Hikhway traffic have to be graduate engineers.

"It must be recognized," says Theodore M. Matson, director, and Wilbur S. Smith, associate director of the school, "that matters of constructing, maintaining and operating highways depend upon engineering techniques."

Taking it from there, Yale's traffic "doctors" analyze practical traffic problems, diagnose them, and prescribe for them.

From the blimp, they photograph parallel highways loaded with automobile traffic and run off the results in slow motion to see which permits the smoother, safer flow of cars, and why. They perch high on bridge towers at night, open wide the lenses of still cameras and from the flow of headlights across their negatives, pick out the traffic bugs that cause jams and accidents.

Back in class rooms, they dig facts from traffic reports and other publications, or use their slide rules to work out formulas for curves, straight-aways and intersections.

One of the highway inventions turned up by these studies is the Medial Divider, a 24-inch metal wall to divide opposing streams of traffic. Roadhogs in California and along Long Island, N. Y., highways have found it keeps them in place, and keeps potential accident victims out of hospitals and morgues.

Today, every city in the U. S. with a population of 500,000 or more has a traffic engineer and a traffic engineering department according to a survey by the Eno Foundation. Three-quarters of the cities between 200,000 and 500,000 and 55 per cent of those in the 50,000-200,000 population bracket have added trained men to handle their traffic problems.

Of the 171 men who have graduated from Yale's Traffic Bureau so far, 92 per cent are working professionally on traffic problems today, either with Federal, state or city traffic agencies, with businesses having traffic problems, or teaching others how to engineer safety on the highways.

In addition to its traffic school here, Yale has started an "In-Service Training" program for engineers who can't spare the time for the longer course. "In-Service Training" courses are taught at Yale, NorthCarolina, Georgia Institute of Technology, the National Academy of the FBI, and in other schools.

Yale has also helped set up graduate courses similar to its own at Purdue, Ohio State, Cornell and Louisiana State. Army officers who are likely to face traffic problems in the future are getting a special intensive one-semister course. Students from China, Canada, England, South Africa Equador, New Zealand, Bolivia, Hawaiian Islands and Puerto Rico have studied here.

Yale's Bureau of Highway Traffic also is becoming a clearing house for new ideas on traffic handling, some of which have stopped the engineers cold.

One correspondent suggested that street cars and busses be eliminated in favor of self-controlled, space hurtling cars which would fly a commuter to his destination after he inserted a coin.

A nautical - minded individual proposed marking all streets and highways with marine signals and having drivers operate by navigational rules.

Pitching is Looking up For Cards

Good Showings by Dickson and Munger Brighten Picture

By Joe Reichler
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

This is definitely a new year for Eddie Dyer and his St. Louis Cardinals.

Just a year ago today, Dyer's Redbirds were in the midst of one of their worst early season slumps. A heavy favorite to retain the championship they won in 1946, the Cardinals got off on the wrong foot and dropped nine straight games. As it turned out, the Cards lost the flag then and there.

But the picture is much brighter this year — thanks to some splendid pitching by Murry Dickson and George Munger.

Dickson gave up 10 hits in Tuesday's opener, but wound up with a 4-0 shutout. Munger allowed only five yesterday and registered a 5-22 victory over the same Cincinnati Reds. The two triumphs shoved the Cards into a first place tie with the Philadelphia Phils.

Much of the Redbirds' success in their second consecutive victory was due to Johnny Vander Meer's inability to find the plate. Cincinnati's starting pitcher gave up 12 bases on balls, five of them setting up Redbird runs in the sixth, seventh and eighth innings.

For five innings, the Cardinals couldn't get a un across the plate. Finally they bunched Enos Slaughter's safe bunt and Nippy Jones' single with a walk and a wild throw by Vander Meer for two runs.

Two walks in the seventh led to another Redbird run and in the eighth Vander Meer issued a couple of passes. The Cardinals added their two final tallies on Ralph LaPointe's single, George Kurowski's long fly and Slaughter's single against relief hurler Harry Gumbert.

Second Baseman Red Schoendienst was struck on his left thumb by Hank Sauer's line drive in the fourth and had to leave the game.

Two in Row Over Braves

Ben Chapman's Phillies made it two in a row over the Boston Braves, taking yesterday's game 4-3 in 13 innings. A pair of walks, a sacrifice, a wild throw and Granville Hammer's long fly produced the winning tally.

Bill Voiselle was yanked for a pinch hitter after seven innings. Ernie White, a refugee from the coaching box, allowed only two hits in five and two-thirds innings of relief, but was charged with the defeat.

Wierd Game at Polo Grounds

At the Polo Grounds the Giants flattened the Dodgers, 9-5, in one of the weirdest games in years. Five Brooklyn hurlers issued 13 free passes and gave up 11 hits, including two home runs.

Ralph Branca, Willard Ramsdell, Preacher Roe, John Hall and John Banta all tried their hands for the Dodgers.

The Giants' pitching wasn't much better. Sheldon Jones and Ken Trinkle also allowed 11 hits between them, including three home runs, but walked only four men.

Manager Leo Durocher used 24 players to set a record for most players used in a nine-inning game. The Dodgers had the old one of 23 back in 1937.

Four Brooklyn second basemen —Jackie Robinson, Ed Miksis, Bob Ramazzotti and Gene Mauch —saw action. Robinson retired after five innings because of a bone bruise on his left hand.

The homers were supplied by John Mize and Sid Gordon of the Giants, and Arky Vaughan, two, and Carl Furillo of the Dodgers.

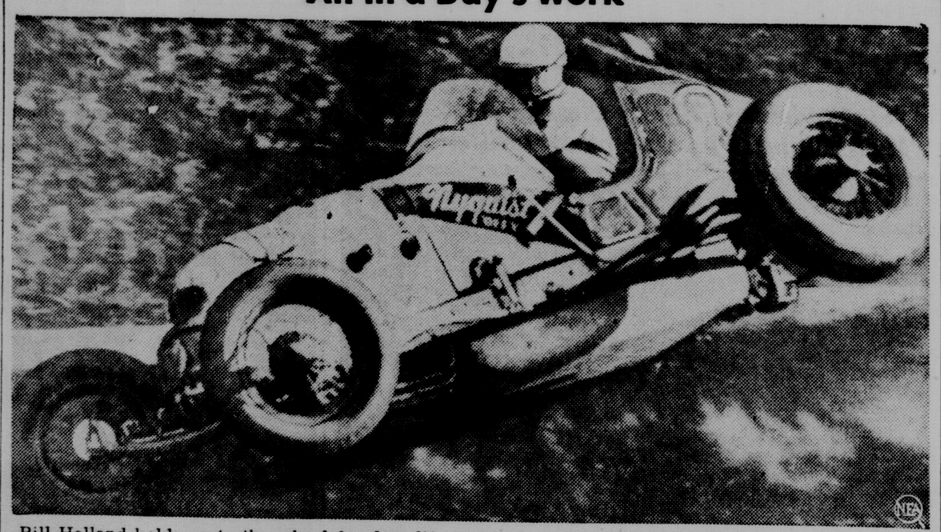

Cubs Win on Walks

Bases on balls by Forrest Main forced in two Chicago runs in the ninth to help the Cubs defeat the Pirates in Pittsburgh, 6-3. Bill Nicholson and Andy Pafko hit home runs for the Cubs. Main had relieved Ernie Bonham in the ninth. Hank Borowy was the winning pitcher.

Bad pitching continued to plague the Yankees. The Washington Senators pounced upon Vince Raschi for five runs in the third inning and whipped the world champions 6-3, in the capital city. Gil Coan's three-run homer proved the decisive blow. Southpaw Mickey Haefner spaced nine hits for his first win.

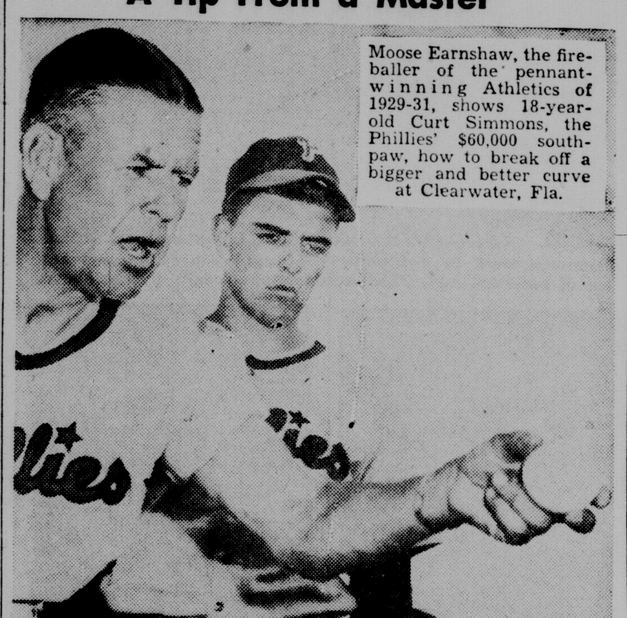

Detroit made it two in a row over the White Sox in Chicago, winning 4-3, tying the Philadelphia Athletics for first place in the American league.

All in a Day's Work

Bill Holland holds on to the wheel for dear life as his car balances on one wheel during turn at Atlanta's dirt track. Holland, second place winner in the Indianapolis 500-mile speed classic last year, kept the car from overturning.

A Tip From a Master

Moose Earnshaw, the fireballer of the pennant-winning Athletics of 1929-31, shows 18-year-old Curt Simmons, the Phillies' $60,000 southpaw, how to break off a bigger and better curve at Clearwater, Fla.

Sport Roundup

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, April 22—(AP)—The eyes of Texas are on Texas this spring — Bibb Falk's nifty Texas U. baseball team, that is. . . . After the Longhorns beat Southern Methodist last week, 21-0, (sounds like three touchdowns, all converted) the fans really began to rave. . . . One version says: "That magazine cover showing the Dodger rookies would have to be a double spread to mug the material Falk gets. And he knows what to do with it." . . . Another, "Falk won't be drawn out, but I think it is the best of a long line of ball teams here. It's 30 percent better than the one that lost to California in the Western NCAA playoffs last year" . . . The Texas-SMU game was a natural. . . . Bobby Layne, who hasn't lost a conference game in three seasons, pitched for Texas and had the pleasure of fanning his old football rival, Doak Walker, on the first try. Later Walker got one of the four SMU hits, so that evened things a little.

Foul Shots

Richard (Swede) Sniderski, up from the freshman basketball team, is trying for a halfback post on Hugh Devore's St. Bonaventure college football squad. . . In scrimmage the other day, the Swede fumbled a handoff and instead of falling on the ball, he tried to dribble it a few times. . . . Of course he lost the ball. . . . Immediately there came a shout from backfield coach John Agnone: "Swede, you're not playing basketball." . . . And line coach Ken Stilley echoed: "No, and if you were, you walked."

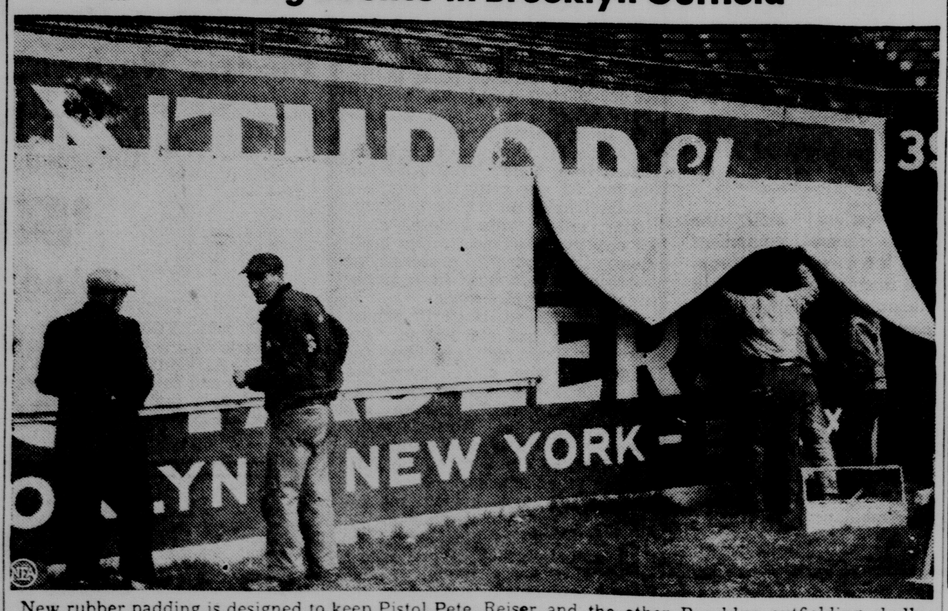

One-Minute Sports Page

Michigan's Charlie Fonville, who set a world shot put record at the Kansas relays, didn't want to compete in that meet because he had barely been able to reach 52 feet in practice. . . . On his first practice put after reaching Lawrence, Charlie reached 56 feet and decided he felt okay after all.

Paid Wolf Bounty

W. M. Riecke was paid a bounty of $52.00 this morning at the office of the county clerk for two old wolves and eight young wolves.

New rubber padding is designed to keep Pistol Pete Reiser and the other Brooklyn outfielding skulls intact when chasing flies at Ebbets Field. All three gardeners will have to be on hand to play carom shots on the rebound.

19-Year-Old Middleweight Dies of Injuries

Falls From Stool At End of Sixth Round of Fight

MILWAUKEE, April 22—(AP)—Jackie Darthard 19-year-old Kansas City middleweight boxer, who collapsed during a bout here last night, died today.

Darthard was unable to answer the bell for the seventh round of a bout with Bert Lytell of Fresno, Calif. He had absorbed a severe beating in the third and sixth rounds.

A brain operation was performed on Darthard several hours after the bout. Dr. Harry Maxwell said the purpose of the operation was to remove a blood clot on the left side of the head between the brain and brain tissues. Darthard was in the operating room about an hour. He died shortly before 9 o'clock this morning without regaining consciousness.

Darthard had been brought to the hospital after he was carried from the ring on a stretcher. He fell from his stool at the end of six rounds of his scheduled 10-round main event bout with Lytell.

The Fresno, Calif., middleweight rated third in his division by the National Boxing Association, had administered a sound beating to Darthard in the third and sixth rounds and held a wide margin. It was their second bout —they boxed to a draw decision two months ago.

Police to Investigate

Meanwhile, police stepped into the investigation and principals in the bout were seized for questioning. Two men identified by police as Darthard's managers were reported to have been carrying concealed weapons. Lytell, who is 23, and his manager, Sam Aaronson of Brooklyn, also were questioned by police.

Detective Lieut. Charles Nowasowski said that one of Darthard's managers, Arrington Klice, 39, of Kansas City, was carrying a gun when he was brought to the detective bureau. Earlier, Detective Lieut. John Zilvay said Jordan Davis, Jr., 27, also of Kansas City, and co-manager of Darthard, was found to be carrying a concealed weapon.

No Formal Charge

Police said no formal charge had been placed against Klice and Davis. Davis was quoted as saying he carried the weapon for protection "because he expected to be carrying a great deal of money with him after the fight."

Dr. A. J. Murphy, boxing commission physician, said Darthard suffered a possible brain hemorrhage from blows to the head.

Darthard was floored twice in the third round, taking counts of four and nine. He withstood Lytell's attack in the fourth and fifth rounds but near the end of the sixth Lytell hammered a jolting right to Darthard's jaw. Darthard, who weighed 160½ pounds to 160¼ for Lytell, survived the round but as his seconds worked on him he fell from his stool.

Darthard had been boxing professionally about two years and in 28 bouts he had lost only one decision — to Mickey Savage of St. Louis in four rounds. More than half of his wins were by knockouts.

Bobby Locke Wins Carolinas Open

SOUTHERN PINES, N. C., April 22—(AP)—Bobby Locke of Johannesburg, South Africa, held title today to the Carolinas Open golf championship, repeating where he started in this country last year.

The ruddy-cheeked Afrikander nosed out Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C., by a single stroke in the 36-hole finals, posting a 71-69 for a 271 total over the 72-hole route.

Locke pulled down $350 first place money for his 64-67-71-69 tour over the 6,661-yard Mid-Pines course.

Locke's 271 was a new record for the Carolinas Open.

Kerr Anxious to Return to Lineup

NEW YORK, April 22 —(AP)— Shortstop Buddy Kerr, under indefinite suspension, says he is anxious to return to the New York Giants' lineup but insists he won't do so until "I know I'm all right."

The infielder was suspended by Manager Mel Ott yesterday because, according to Ott, "he refused to play."

But Kerr said, "I went out to the Polo Grounds and told Mel that I wasn't feeling well and that the doctor advised me to take it easy for a couple of days.

The infielder said that Ott then ordered him to play. I explained I couldn't and Mel said, okay, turn in your uniform."

Kerr said he had visited a clinic earlier and had been advised that it was all right for him to work out but that he shouldn't play for a while lest he aggravate an injury sustained when he was beaned in an exhibition game at Topeka, Kas., April 14.

"I would have been willing to work out but I'm not going to take the risk of hurting myself when the doctor told me to be careful," the infielder added.

Ott said the same doctor advised him (Ott) it was all right for Kerr to play.

Blues Pull up to Halfway Mark

By The Associated Press

Cold weather took a two-game toll of the American Association schedule last night.

Cold blasts postponed league-leading St. Paul's series opener at Indianapolis and Minneapolis' season debut at Columbus.

In the two league games played, Kansas City pulled up to a .500 rating in the standings, defeating Toledo, 8 to 7, and Louisville also gained a .500 percentage mark, downing Milwaukee, 5 to 2.

At Toledo, Kansas City's defending American Association champions rapped out 15 hits off four Mud Hen pitchers. The losers collected 11 safeties, including a pair of doubles by Ellis Clary, off three Blues' hurlers. Center fielder Hank Bauer clouted a homer for the Blues.

Tonight's Schedule:
Minneapolis at Columbus
St. Paul at Indianapolis

Grapplers In Matches Give Crowd Thrills

Team Event Was Exciting And Full Of Speedy Action

The boys certainly gave the crowd something to roar about, especially in the last fall of the main event of the team match, where all four were being tossed out of the ring, including the referee, Wednesday night at the wrestling match held at the Armory.

The feature event, a ninety-minute time limit between Johnny Marrs and Lou Newman against Ray Vilmer and Bobby Bruns composed of a team match, where two challengers struggle for a fall, and when one "gets worked over", he tags his partner, who takes over, seems to be the choice for most fans around this vicinity, judging by the uproar of the audience during these meets.

The first fall went to Newman who floored Bruns to the mat in 19 minutes and 24 seconds. Vilmer held Marrs to the count of three in 7 minutes and 32 seconds to even the score for both sides, and then the party really got rough, for each partner tried to out do the other in working over their opponents, but in the end Vilmer finally came through with the gravy by matting Marrs in 14 minutes and 32 seconds.

In the opening event between Barney Bernard of Kansas City and Ken Kenneth of Auckland, N. Z., Kenneth won the first bout in 8 minutes and 30 seconds, but wasl left out from there on when Vernard took the rest of the honors in the last two falls.

What the wrestling fans have been waiting for, are coming to Sedalia May 5, the "Battle Royal" composed of four girl wrestlers, who have appeared here before are Nell Steward, Dot Dotson, Violet Viann, and Helen Hild. There will be other features for the night, but the schedule has not been arranged for this meeting as yet.

Winners In Table Tennis Tourney

Winners of table tennis in the Teen Town tournament Wednesday night were: Margie Cummins, Jean Hains and Carol Lance of the girls' class, and Jim Dent, Ken Reed, John Heiss, Gene Hargrove, John Handley, Phil Burford, Albert Allgaier, Don Harrisson, Jimmy Watts, Bob Hogan, Jack Cooney, Hugh Buchanan, Joe Paxton, Jim Labus, and Bill Rudd.

Thursday and Friday night at 7 o'clock, brackets will be played off, and Saturday night finals will be played.

Prizes will be awarded that night for both groups.

Internationalized Jerusalem Will Isolate Its Jews

Whatever happens to Palestine as a whole, Jerusalem is expected to be internationalized under a statute drawn by the UN Trusteeship Council. This provides that Jerusalem proper and suburban settlements be administered by a governor appointed by the Trusteeship Council, a Council of Administration and an elected Legislative Council and a Judiciary. White area with dot-dash border on map at left shows proposed boundaries of Jerusalem under the UN statute. It would be an inland "island" completely surrounded by Arab territory and would be dependent on the outside for water, food, fuel, electricity and communications. Jews' two "lifelines," highway and railroad to Tel Aviv on the coast, run through Arab territory. Palestine map at right shows isolation of Jerusalem from Jewish areas.

Newschart shows the governmental setup. In the elected Legislative Council, the Arabs' 18 seats will, if Jerusalem Arabs so desire, be allocated by the governor between Christian and Moslem Arabs.

Early Action On Palestine Truce Urged

Meeting of UN Council Will be Held Friday

By Francis W. Carpenter

LAKE SUCCESS, April 22—(AP)—U. S. called Wednesday night for urgent action to carry out a Security Council truce demand on Jews and Arabs in Palestine.

Warren R. Austin, U. S. delegate to the United Nations, told the United Nations Council that recent events in Palestine required the Council to decide what to do now about the unheeded cease-fire order.

The Council delegates, listening gravely, made no objection, and Dr. Alfonso Lopez of Colombia, the Council's April president, called a meeting on the truce for Friday.

Arabs and Jews so far have ignored the cease-fire order and are reported engaged now in a battle for the port city of Haifa.

Austin spoke briefly to the Council after a majority approved a formula designed to settle the India-Pakistan dispute over the princely state of Kashmir in northernmost India.

Earlier the United States had taken the lead on two other fronts to speed action for a peaceful solution of the boiling Palestine problem.

The American delegate declared the Council should determine whether any specific steps have been taken by the Jews, Arabs and the British administration to carry out the truce ordered by the council early last Saturday.

Then, Austin said, the Council can consider what next should be done.

Commission Desired

Informed sources said Austin wanted the Council to set up a commission to supervise the truce. Austin was reported to have no definite plan for the commission make-up now.

The Jewish agency for Palestine meanwhile attacked the U. S. scheme for a trusteeship over Palestine.

In a 15-page memorandum submitted to the Assembly, the agency said the concept of trusteeship is "flagrantly out of accord with the general principles and current realities of the Palestine situation."

Fighting continued in Palestine.

British security forces left most of Haifa early today, keeping only the port and its oil installations.

As the British gave up most of Haifa, Undersecretary of State Lovett indicated in Washington that the U. S. has been beseeching Britain to defer troop withdrawals from Palestine.

The British have announced their soldiers will be out of the Holy land by Aug. 1. They are yielding the Palestine mandate rule May 15.

A British delegation spokesman here has said his government will not accept any plan which would keep British soldiers in Palestine after Aug. 1.

Children Get The Book in One Picture

By NEA Service

NEW YORK,—(NEA)—Ira Levin, 45, gave up a prosperous oil business to teach his children to enjoy classics like "Gulliver's Travels" and "Treasure Island."

Now he's right back in the oil business again — oil paints this time.

Levin discovered that his children, David and Gloria, were more interested in today's blood and thunder than in reading.

They wanted something exciting and book type was dull to them.

Levin decided that if they could visualize the stories of Gulliver and others, they'd find the reading just as exciting. About the same time he remembered the job California artist Ayers Houghtelling had done in painting an oil company's dull annual report so that even the stockholders enjoyed it.

He discovered that Houghtelling feld the same way about the classics. Houghtelling already had painted the story of "Alice in Wonderland" for his own children.

Levin bought the picture and tried it on his youngsters. It worked so well he decided to get back in business printing picture stories of the classics.

So far more than 5,000 copies of that first picture-story have been sold and Houghtelling is hard at work on "Treasure Island" and "The Life of Christ."

When he finishes these, Levin has commissioned him to do "Gulliver's Travels" and Robinson Crusoe." In all he has some 20 children's stories planned. He is even considering the idea of getting Picasso to try one.

Closeup of one corner of Ayres Houghtelling's story-painting of "Alice in Wonderland" shows his "book-on-canvas" technique.

An Enemy Mine Made Nicole a Cripple; Now American Gifts Help Keep Her Alive

Crusade for Children Provides Way to Help Innocent War Victims

The first thing her American liberators brought Nicole was a blinding crash that tore off her right leg and ruined her left leg and robbed her of her ability to walk for three years.

Now they have given her back her walking.

She still needs her health—a health that can only be restored by milk and nourishing food.

Her American liberators can give her that, too, by contributing to the Crusade for Children of American Overseas Aid-United Nations Appeal for Children. It will be a late liberation, when it comes.

It was November, 1944, when Nicole received the joyous news that the American Army had at last broken through the stubborn German defense near her village in the heart of the French Vosges Mountains.

Nicole, daughter of the village baker, donned her best dress and took a short cut through the fields. She would be first to welcome the Americans. . . .

But she did not see them.

On the outskirts of Corcieux, she stepped on a German mine, and in one hideous explosion, one leg was lost and the other mangled. The stump of the one was in no condition for use of an artificial limb, and the other was too weak for walking. For three years, Nicole remained in bed.

She remained there until she was found by one of the American foreign relief agencies participating in American Overseas Aid-United Nations Appeal for Children.

Thus it was that Nicole met her liberators at last, and was liberated by them from her prison of helplessness.

But this is not the happy ending of a sad story. The story is not over.

Nicole is still a growing girl, and in order to regain her health she needs foods containing calcium like milk, butter and cheese. She hasn't had a drop of milk since before the war. In France, milk is rationed at less than a pint a day for small children, nursing and pregnant mothers, and old people.

Nicole will remain shriveled and withered in the bloom of girlhood, unless nourishing food reaches her.

It can reach her—and millions like her, who lost arms and legs, sight and health, in the explosions of mines on the ground and bombs in the air—if Americans give generously to the Crusade for Children of American Overseas Aid-United Nations Appeal for Children.

CRIPPLED, SHE NEEDS FOOD TO LIVE—War's most innocent victims, children wounded in combat zones can be saved from starvation through contributions to Crusade for Children of American Overseas Aid-United Nations Appeal for Children.

Americans are asked to give $60,000,000 for desperately needed food, medicines, clothing and shelter which the agencies participating in the Crusade are seeking to furnnsh to war victims. The campaign represents the combined appeals of America's major voluntary foreign relief agencies, together with United States participation in the world-wide United Nations Appeal for Children. Contributions may be given to local campaign committees or sent directly to national headquarters of American Overseas Aid-United Nations Appeal for Children, 39 Broadway, New York 6. N. Y.

Bridegrooms Once Wore Nightgowns

Back around 1650, bridegrooms wore wedding nightgowns, too. This specimen, shown at a Newport, R. I., hobby show, comes complete with bonnet. It's one of hundreds owned by Mrs. Oliver Cushman, and it's modeled by her niece. Barbara Dawley.

Hal Boyle's Column

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, April 22—(AP)—The girl on the magazine cover is getting shorter and rounder.

"When I came into this business ten years ago," said Harry Conover, who operates a model agency, "the ideal cover girl was five feet eight inches tall and weighed 115 to 118 pounds.

"She had a 22-inch waist, 33-inch bosom and 33-inch hips.

"Today the cover girl is an inch shorter, weighs up to 120 pounds and has a 24 waist, 34 bosom and 34½ hips."

His agency stocks beautiful girls on a mass production basis. He has a current inventory of more than 200 photographic and fashion models and adds about ten new faces a week as old ones drop out of the game.

A Fine Art

Huckstering beauty is a finely developed art as well as a profitable business. One of Conover's contributions has been the invention of catchy names for his products—Melody Johnson, Choo Choo Johnson, Jinx Falkenburg, Candy Jones.

Some time ago he changed Miss Jones' name again — to Conover. They have a son now. They named the little fellow Jones Conover.

Conover, an ex-model, who at 37 is getting somewhat rounder himself, believes television will create a new boom field for models and save movie talent scouts a lot of trouble.

"They'll be able to look over the crop by just switching on their television sets," he said. "It will even save them the cost of making screen tests."

A "Terrific Vogue"

Teen age models are having a "terrific vogue" now and account for 50 percent of his agency's business.

"But our teen agers all want to get that sophisticated grownup look," complained Conover pleasantly, "whereas they an make more money by staying young and fresh looking. Nothing kills off a model quicker than getting a professional look.

"A girl is old and decrepit in this business at 24 or 25. It eats them up. But if a model is the bored, high fashion type she can go on indefinitely — to 35 or more."

These are the semi-emaciated ladies with a face as expressionless as a catcher's mask who grace the pages of the four-bit fashion magazines.

Conover stresses to his girls that modeling is a short-term career and should be used only as a calling card or stepping stone to some other field—such as movies, the radio or fashion promotion.

Hard to Push New Girl

"It takes us a year and a half to get a girl out of her cocoon," he said. "Pushing a new girl is like pushing a truck. It's hard to get up momentum.

"And after she begins hitting the covers she is usually good for only three or four years at top prices. Her face gets too well known.

Of the 750 or more professional models in New York City Conover estimates only about 75 get the top rate — now $25 an hour, although it climbed to $50 during the war. A girl in this bracket may make from $500 to $750 a week but is lucky to average $350—while it lasts.

About 300 other girls average $125 to $150 a week. The rest make less. Minimum hourly rate for a Conover model—$7.50.

Temperament With Beauty

"It's bad when a girl lets modeling become a religion —when she thinks the whole world is waiting to see her face on next month's cover," said Conover. "Because that just isn't true. When a model gets the idea she is the only one — there's nothing you can do with her."

Conover wanders around among his long stemmed beauties like an absent-minded zoology professor wading in a frog pond. He has learned to be impersonal with them because he has learned that temperament goes with beauty.

"If I were a plumber," he said philosophically, "I suppose I'd get just as tired of looking at brass pipes, too."

The earth's populatin is increasing at the rate of 1 per cent annually.

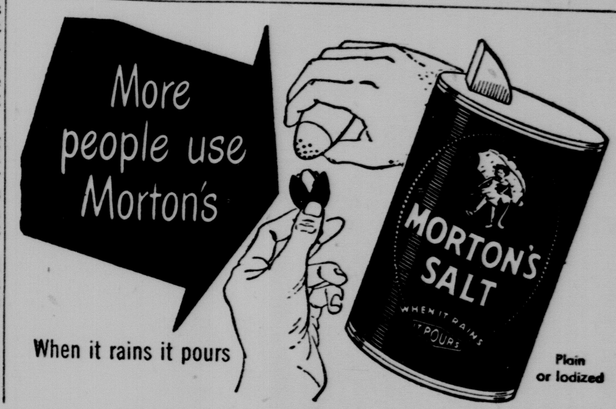

Serve a hot macaroni salad for a luncheon dish. A little like the popular German hot potato salad, it is made from cooked elbow macaroni, crisp bacon bits, onion, sweet pickle, celery, green pepper and salad dressing.

Green cabbage is a crisp and delicious addition to spring meals. Quarter it. Place it in enough boiling water to cover and cook uncovered just until tender. This will take no more than 7 to 12 minutes. Leaving the saucepan uncovered will help dissipate any strong odor.

Husband-Seeker

Mrs. Gerda Richter, of Stuttgart, Germany, wrote to Ohio's Gov. Thomas J. Herbert, asking his help in finding her an American husband. The 38-year-old divorcee was born in France, has a 12-year-old son, and says she is now "stateless." She's employed by the American Military Government. Two letters, offering marriage, have already been forwarded to her by Governor Herbert.

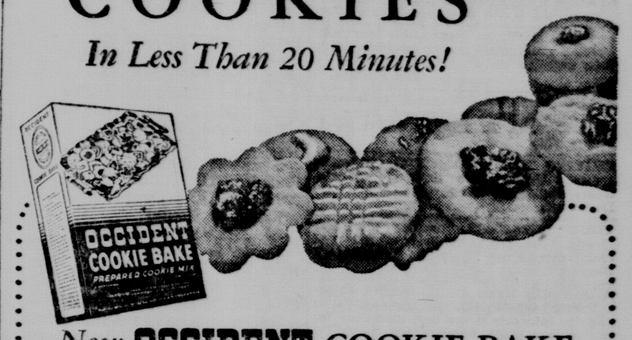

Spring appetites call for fresh rhubarb. To stew it by the double boiler method cut the rhubarb in one-inch pieces. Place it with sugar in top of double boiler and cook, covered, over hot water until it is tender. It should be soft but still hold its shape. Cooking it this way without added water gives it a delectable flavor and color. About one cup of sugar may be used to 2 pounds (5 to 6 cups) of diced rhubarb.

Braising in a small amount of liquid at a low temperature will help to tenderize some of the tougher cuts of meat. If potatoes or carrots, onions or celery are to be cooked with the meat they should be added toward the end of the meat's cooking period.

New little guards of plastic will protect fingertips while nail polish is drying. The little guards are slipped over the fingertips before applying polish. After the polish is applied, the top cover, which has been folded back, is clipped into place to cover the wet nail.

Communism Has Suffered A Great Defeat in Italy

By Dewitt Mackenzie
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Anti-Communist forces appear to have won a smashing victory for freedom in the Italian national elections — a victory likely to have a far-reaching influence on the cold-war between Russia and the Democracies.

The returns aren't complete at this writing, but Premier Alcide de Gasperi's Christian Democrats and other right wing parties have sufficient lead so that Vice Premier Saragat has announced "the Communists will not be admitted into Italy's new government."

If that proves to be true it will represent a sensational defeat for the numerically greatest Communist party outside Russia. Saragat, head of the anti-Red Socialists, interpreted the upset thus:

Rebirth of Democracy

"The Italian election means a rebirth of democracy in Europe. The victory of Democratic forces is a great setback to Russia and Communist plans for expansion. Italy is now a part of western Europe and not of the Balkans."

That's what we like to read, but let's temper our exultation with a bit of caution. Even if final returns bear out the present estimate, we mustn't overlook this:

Until Italy's first full-fledged post-war parliament meets next month and elects a new president there will be danger of a Bolshevist revolt. Communist leader Togliatti has promised that the Reds won't use force — but observers aren't making any bets on such assurance. Saragat himself warns that "the election does not mean the final defeat of Communism in Italy," adding:

"This is more difficult because the Communists cannot be fought by police measures, but only through social measures. The Communist party will remain strong here as it is today in France."

Nearer Freedom

So we now see Italy, in spirit at least, "a part of western Europe and not of the Balkans." This means that the peninsula (barring a Communist rebellion) is taking its place beside the other nations which have banded together under the flag of the Marshall plan to battle Communist aggression.

Italy is now nearer real freedom than she has been since Mussolini took over and inaugurated police rule in 1922. If she now can consolidate her victory over Bolshevism, she will become a vital base for the forces of Democracy. She guards the southern flank of western Europe.

This encourages the belief that Communism may be held along its present line through central Europe. If the Reds can be stopped there, it will be a powerful deterrent to another world war.

New Game for Jerusalem Youngsters

Autos Damaged In A Collision

A head-on collision between two automobiles occurred Wednesday night around 8:30 o'clock, just outside the city limits, east of town on highway 50.

According to Sheriff Ed Goetz, who investigated the accident, Ben Rumsey, 1718 South Quincy, who was traveling east, driving a 1929 Model-A was blinded by the oncoming car lights of a 1939 Chevrolet coach, driven by K. P. Smith who was coming to Sedalia to visit a patient at the Bothwell hospital when the accident occurred.

Both drivers escaped serious injury.

The damaged cars were removed by the Chamberlin wrecker.

Considerable damage resulted to both automobiles. The front end of the Model-A was completely demolished.

Traffic Cases Only

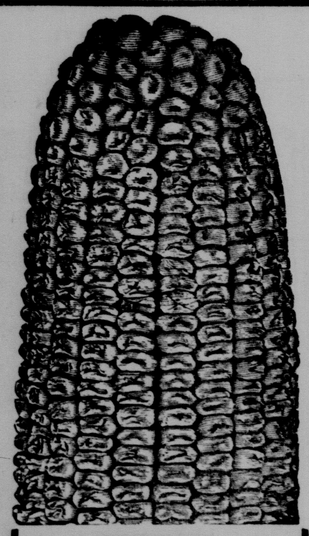

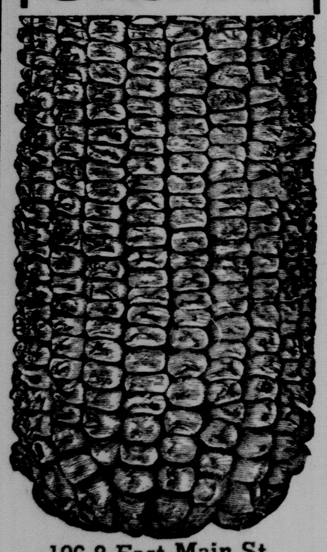

Police Judge H. O. Berry had little to do in court today. The only cases brought before him were four overtime parkers, and one motorist who ran a speed sign. The overtime parkers were each fined one dollar, the one who ran a speed sign two dollars.
